BLAINE AND SILVER.

James G. Blaine's Republicanism has never been questioned. If the Republican party ever had a leader who for nearly twenty years, dating from 1874, was distinctively its representative thinker, its ideal statesman, the man who in a peculiar sense above all others was the master exponent of its ideas and policies, it was James G. Blaine. Turn to the record of the Forty-fifth congress and you can see what Mr. Blaine thought about the silver question, and judge what he would have said now if he had lived to see a Democratic president forcing the unconditional stoppage of silver coinage, and establishing absolute supremacy of gold as the sole measure of value. This is what Mr. Blaine said:

I believe the struggle now going on in this country and in other countries for a single gold standard would, if successful, produce widespread disaster in the end throughout the commercial world. The destruction of silver as money and establishing gold as the sole unit of value must have a ruinous effect on all forms of property except those investments which yield a fixed return in money. These would be enormously enhanced in value and would gain a disproportionate and unfair advantage over every other species of property. If, as the most reliable statistics affirm, there are nearly seven thousand millions of coin or bullion in the world, not very unequally divided between gold and silver, it is impossible to strike silver out of existence as money without results which will prove distressing to millions and utterly disastrous to tens of thousands. I do not think that this country, holding so vast a proportion of the world's supply of silver in its mountains and its mines, can afford to reduce the metal to the situation of mere merchandise. If silver ceases to be used as money in Europe and America the great mines of the Pacific slope will be closed and dead. A vast source of wealth to this entire country is destroyed the moment silver is permanently disused as money.

That was Mr. Blaine's understanding of the currency question; and while he lived we do not recall any Republican leader or newspaper of the slightest authority that impugned the soundness of his Republicanism. We do not think that any one even so much as suggested that he was a lunatic. We are content to share on this vital money question the views and sentiments of the greatest Republican statesman of them all.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

It is not unimportant—as thousands of honest American workmen are deprived, by the shutting down of the mills, of a chance to earn their bread, and as the whole nation finds business contracted by money stringency caused solely by the threat of industrial revolution—to try to fix the responsibility. With whom does it rest? Did any one person set in motion the train of circumstances which has produced these lamentable results? Let us see.

Silver purchases were made month by month when Mr. Cleveland sent to congress his first incendiary message in 1887. They were still made when he wrote his letter of acceptance in 1888. They were made when he accepted the nomination last year upon a revolutionary platform; but still the business of the nation prospered. But no sooner had he and his party come into office, with positive ability to make good their threats, than a great wave of depression swept over the land. It is impossible not to perceive that the whole cause of the trouble was the success of the Democratic party, or to deny that the man who gave the impetus to the forces of destruction was Grover Cleveland, to whose rash utterances and aggressive promotion of the free trade cause is to be attributed, far more than to any other influence, the calamities which have overtaken a nation which one year ago had high prosperity.

THE SECRETARY of the State Historical Society of Virginia has written for a copy of the Columbian edition of THE REPUBLICAN for the purpose of placing it on file. The portrait and biography of Secretary Blaine, a former prominent citizen of Virginia, being the reason for its being placed in the archives of the old Dominion state.

What encouragement is there for young men to be handsome and noble and good when old buffers like Carter Harrison can step in and carry off the prettiest and wealthiest girls in the country?

THERE are very few bank failures and a great many bank resurrections, which means that the scare is practically over and the country can breathe easy once more.

MR. CLEVELAND enjoys one decided advantage. When his term expires he will not have to run again on his record.

SEVERAL KINDS OF AN ANIMAL.

The Platypus, of Australia, Which Looks Like Birds and Beasts.

It is less than a century since the European hunted the platypus to his lair, the first published account of him having appeared in the Naturalist's Miscellany of London in 1799. It would be interesting to know the effect that was made upon the first discoverer of what Scribner's calls an animated paradox—than which nature furnishes nothing more anomalous, in its combination of duck-like mandibles and webbed feet, the latter further equipped with spurs like the game fowl and claws like the true burrowing quadrupeds, mole-like eyes and otter-like fur, body of musquash and tail of beaver. One who was addicted to his cups might recognize in the creature merely the figment of an alcoholized brain, and an artist regard him as the prototype of one of those uncanny monsters which sprawl upon the floor of St. Anthony's cave in Tennyson's bizarre pictures of the temptation of that holy character. Our earliest and, in fact, almost our sole accounts of the platypus are confined to bald and literal descriptions of his appearance and habitat, from which we learn that he is confined to Tasmania and the southern districts of Australia; and although his race has been thought to embrace two or three species, it is now generally agreed to consist of only one. You may repair many times to the favorite haunt of the platypus before you see him, and to discover the retreat to which he modestly retires on observing your presence is a task impossible, except by accident, to any other than a black fellow. To these cunning hunters, however, there are no secrets of beast or bird; their unerring instinct tells them when the platypus, diving near the edge of the stream, is in quest of food, or when he is seeking the submerged entrance to his burrow; and they will advise you either where to point your gun in expectation of the animal's reappearance, or where to dig in the bank in confidence of striking the grass-lined nest wherein he dwells and rears his remarkable family.

AN Englishman has secured an American patent on a device which he calls a manual gymnasium for musicians. A strip of leather attached above the elbow runs to a series of springs connected with each finger and thumb of the hand. The arrangement allows the gymnast to gain strength and agility by working the fingers.

HEART DISEASE 20 YEARS.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Dear Sirs: For 20 years I was troubled with heart disease. Would frequently have falling spells and smothering at night. Had to sit up or get out of bed to breathe. Pain in my left side and back most of the time; at last I became dropsical. I was very nervous and nearly worn out. The least excitement would cause me to faint. I was so much troubled with smothering, for the last fifteen years I could not sleep on my left side or back until I began taking your New Heart Cure. I had not taken it very long until I felt much better, and I can now sleep on either side or back without the least discomfort. I have no pain, smothering, dropsy, no wind on stomach or other disagreeable symptoms. I am able to do all my own household work without any trouble and consider myself cured.

It is now four years since I have taken any medicine. Am in better health than I have been in 40 years. I honestly believe that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure saved my life. I am now 62 years of age, and am able to do a good day's work.

May 25th, 1892. Mrs. ELMIRA HATCH.
